Directions

The UK Med-Peds Clinic is on the third floor of the University Health Service Building, inside the Internal Medicine Group Clinic.

Patients can park on the third floor of the Kentucky Clinic parking garage and follow the blue set of double doors into the Kentucky Clinic. Continue straight down the third floor hallway and pass the Ear, Nose & Throat Clinic. From there, follow the signs to the Internal Medicine Group Clinic.
What is a Med-Peds doctor?
The doctors at the UK Internal Medicine/Pediatrics Group Clinic (commonly known as the UK Med-Peds Clinic) are board-certified in both internal medicine and pediatrics. This allows them to care for both routine and complicated health problems in patients of all ages. In addition, our doctors are able to care for patients when they’re young and continue caring for them throughout their entire lives.

What services does the Med-Peds Clinic provide?
The Med-Peds Clinic provides complete family care, annual exams and comprehensive medical care from infancy to adulthood.

Who works in the Med-Peds Clinic?
Both attending and resident physicians collaborate to care for patients in the Med-Peds Clinic. This means that each patient gets the benefit of two physicians’ expertise for diagnosis and treatment.

What’s the difference between a resident physician and an attending physician?
An attending physician has completed a residency and practices medicine in a clinic or hospital in his or her specialty. An attending physician supervises fellows, residents and medical students. All attending physicians in the Internal Medicine Group/Pediatrics Group Clinic have completed medical school, have three to nine years of post-medical-school training in a specialty, and are board-certified in both internal medicine and pediatrics.

A resident physician has received his or her medical degree and is receiving advanced training under the supervision of an attending physician. Our residents have completed one or two years of post-medical school training and are pursuing subspecialty training in internal medicine and pediatrics.
